

EBERT SAYS GERMANS DEMAND JUST PEACE

President Addresses National Assembly and Says Only Peace of Understanding is Possible.

HE WARNS HOME AGITATORS

Takes Rap at Those Who Would Tear Down New Government Work—Would Plunge Into Abyss.

COPENHAGEN, April 15.—According to a dispatch from Weimar, President Ebert of Germany has addressed the following Easter message to the national assembly:

"The national assembly expressed unanimously on April 10 the expectation that the government would agree only to a peace based on understanding and conciliation and would reject any treaty which would place any treaty which would sacrifice the present and future of the German people and the world. I welcome this pronouncement as a declaration of the inflexible will of the German people that the coming peace shall be a peace of lasting understanding and conciliation among the nations.

"The national assembly and the government are working with devotion and energy to fulfill the great task of giving peace, bread, work and a new constitution to a great nation. The task is difficult to fulfill as long as those who have it in their power to give the world peace allow themselves to be dominated by feelings of hatred and revenge and by means of the hunger blockade, and by threatening our annihilation are driving the German people to despair.

President Ebert denounced the internal disorders of the country whose action, he said, "threatens to completely destroy our economic life."

"The warning of the masses for human dignity," he continues, "is an excuse for a handful of disorderly agitators who systematically endeavor to disturb the cooperation of the German republic. The new Germany cannot be created by a jump in the dark, which would certainly be a jump into the abyss. A socialist dictatorship of the proletariat minority would certainly ruin industrial Germany in a few months. A speedy external peace, based on understanding and a league of nations is a vital question for us but no less does our salvation rest on the necessity for peace and work at home. I therefore, in this grave hour exhort all classes of our people to cease tearing one another to pieces. Win a victory over yourselves, open your eyes and see the abyss."

Invents Bit That Bore Square Hole

C. H. Schmidgall at machine with his wonder drill and closeup of bit that bores square hole.

Fourteen years ago C. H. Schmidgall of Peoria, Ill., started to work on what was then considered a mechanical impossibility. That was a bit that would bore a square hole. Two years ago he solved the problem. He has invented one that will bore holes of any of the shapes shown in the panel on his machine above. On March 18 of this year he received the absolute patent on his device and is now willing to have the world know about it.

VOICE FROM FRANCE URGES NEW TIGER

Doctor Barton Says North Side Church Is One of Tulsa's Greatest Needs.

Dr. Louis S. Barton, who is now in France as a Y. M. C. A. secretary, and who is pastor of the Holmen Avenue M. E. church, in this city, endorses the plan of the people on the north side to build a greater Tiger Memorial church.

"I regard it as one of the most important enterprises that will be before Tulsa this year," he wrote Pastor Cook. "It will take a church like this to meet your interests and an enterprise like this will demand the respect and support of the citizenship of this city. Dr. Barton's letter is as follows:

Before leaving the state and having heard of your north side church enterprise, I wish to say that I regard a large church with institutional features, on the north side of the city as one of the most important enterprises that will be before Tulsa for this year. The north side is rapidly growing, some of the best residences of the city are being built there, and a great representative church is badly needed. In all this population of approximately 12,000 people, there are only two small churches, wholly inadequate to meet the demands of this section.

I am glad that you have undertaken the building of a church in this section to cost not less than $200,000 which will be one of the best Protestant churches in the city. It will take a church like this to meet your interests, and an enterprise like this will demand the respect and support of the citizenship of the city. I will be glad to be a personal subscriber to this fund and I believe that our people of the city will gladly give you liberal assistance. Sincerely, L. S. BARTON.

Andrew and Imogene

BY ROSE FULKERSON

"WHAT'S in the box?" asked Imogene, pointing to a tailor's box which had come in during the afternoon.

"When did it come?" countered Andrew.

"About 3 o'clock. What is it?"

"It has been here since 3 o'clock and you have not opened it. I am, graduate you."

"What is it?" she again asked.

"Words are inadequate," he exclaimed, breaking the seal.

"He spread a coat over the back of a chair.

"It is an oxford coat and the very nicest suit your handsome husband ever wore," he explained.

"But it has a silk facing," she exclaimed. "Why, Andrew, it is a Tuxedo."

"Tuxedo jacket is the proper term, my dear," he corrected.

"But it is gray."

"Yes, I had noticed it," he replied, calmly.

"But, Andrew, they are always black."

"Not at all, not at all, this suit is to be worn to the theater and on joyous occasions, this is a glad suit, not a sad suit."

"But, Andrew, who ever heard of any one wearing evening clothes of anything else but black?"

"My tailor," said Andrew. "He told me he had made two others, one for a fellow in Chicago and one for a movie actor and that at the tailors' show four or five fellows wore them. I am the proper one to do it in our town because I have a splendid physique and am prominent and go to all sorts of nice places. He said so himself in a moment of confidence with me."

"Andrew," she said, "please wear it to lodge and to places like that where there are nothing but men. It may be all right, but until I see a lot of young men wearing them I do not want to go about with you when you are wearing it."

"Young men? Young men? What's that got to do with it? Am I a Methusalem?"

"I am glad that you have put your pride garment on a hanger and placing it in the closet. 'Till it is a trick suit if you want to, you will realize before next winter is over that your husband is a leader of men, not a follower of college boys."

The atmosphere of the room became chilly as each took up a magazine feeling the futility of further words.
